

RETOLD: SIX FAIRYTALES REIMAGINED

When the Sultan has arrived and is at ease, ask that I tell you a story. Do you like stories?" From Beauty and the Beast to Scheherazade, and Baba Yaga to the North Wind, fairy tales have inspired readers for generations. In Retold, six fables from across the globe are re-imagined--with a subversive twist. This anthology collects six short stories from diverse, feminist, and original perspectives. - Hunting Monsters by S.L. Huang - In Her Head, In Her Eyes by Yukimi Ogawa - Mrs....

Reader's Opinions

An amazing collection of six subverted fairy tales, with an essay by each author about what influenced the story, and an author interview. The story by S.L. Huang (who is eligible for a 2015 Campbell) made me want to pick up her novels. My...

Some of these hit the mark for me and some of them missed it. I liked S.L. Huang's "Hunting Monsters" and Catherine F. King's "The 99th Bride," loved Octavia Cade's "The Mussel Eater," and was lukewarm on the rest of the stories. So I'll probably go hunt down some more Octavia Cade, but that's about...
